

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns an optical viewing device which incorporates a spectral filter to partially reduce the intensity or wavelength(s) of light transmitted to a specific region of a specimen which may be a human eye. The reduction in light intensity or wavelength may be variable across the filter and may be accomplished in an intensity-dependent or a wavelength-dependent manner.

CONFIDENTIALITY REQUESTED
AND NOT TO BE QUOTED OR REFERENCED EXCEPT AS AUTHORIZED BY THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OR HIS DEPUTY OR AS PROVIDED BY LAW.